

A green mission

On March 5 Barooga Primary School students will help make practical environmental changes within their communities and do their part in saving the environment by participating in the Green Up Clean Up fundraiser.

“Barooga Primary School is leading by example by choosing a healthy fundraiser promoting awareness and the importance of our environment, it’s up to the local community to get behind their efforts now,” Green Up Clean up spokesperson Sarah Morgan said.

The Green Up Clean Up organiser Nikki Bird is extremely proud of the way the children and their families are getting behind their school to fundraise, and are calling to the community to keep a look out for Barooga Primary School students on the search for sponsorship to go towards the Stephanie Alexander Kitchen garden.

Ms Morgan said Green Up Clean Up was seeing more schools looking for innovative ways to raise extra funding and also promote healthy educational messages to the school’s community.

All schools and childcare centres in Australia can use this environmental friendly program at their school.

The Green Up Clean Up Program lets students do their bit for the environment and raises those extra funds for schools to put back into their surrounding environment or to spend on educational projects such as water tanks, vegetable gardens or native tree planting.
